

Private Networks Market Research Overview

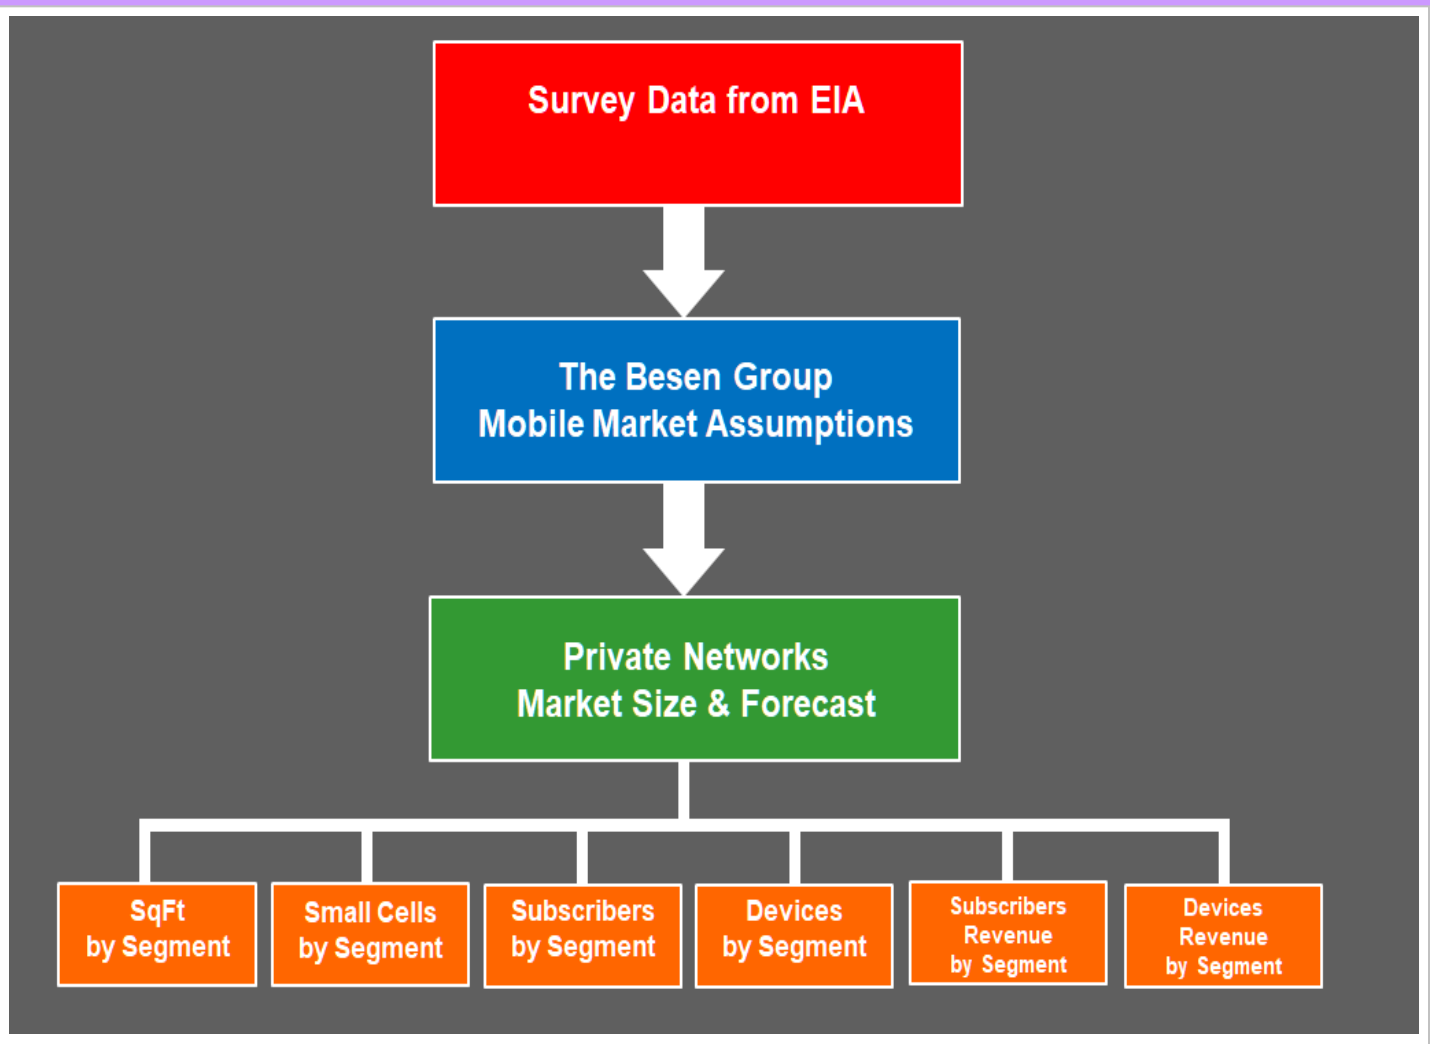

Based on the survey results from EIA, The Besen Group developed a comprehensive private networks market size and market forecast for the US market.

The market size and market forecast includes the following segments: warehouse/storage, office space, service, mercantile, public assembly, religious worship, education, food service, hospitality, healthcare, food sales, public order/safety and other.

The Besen Group offers the market size and market forecast in PDF format on a corporate license basis. The license price includes one hour telephone consultation with the senior wireless analyst to explain our methodology and assumptions. The Besen Group can also develop customized market research based on its client requirements and target market segments.
